Julie and Eddy,

Just letting you know that I have been emailing Divya regularly regarding the planning of the Days of Dialogue. As of now, I've not received much communication from him. This lies on his shoulders because student groups do not get charged for venues on campus. If I book a venue, our PD gets "re-charged" from the UCLA venue where it is hosted. You likely saw my email to Divya last week letting him know the amount of notice that we need. At this point, I don't see February actually happening since it is now Jan. 29th, but I will keep you updated on any progress. I emailed Divya again this morning asking him for the progress report. So, we shall see.

As always, I'm open to other suggestions you may have, and we always have the option of doing this later in the academic year or at the beginning of the next academic year as well.

Please let me know your thoughts.

Thanks,
Kevin

Hi, Divya –

As we are quickly nearing the beginning of February, I am checking in to see if you have an update on the February date and location that you are aiming for to hold the Days of Dialogue. As for me, I need to know as soon as possible due to scheduling and the requirement that officers need to know at least 21 days in advance of any changes to their schedules. LAPD Officers Limon and Nony will need to do the same with their officers as well.

Please let us know.

Hi, Julie -

I'm going to give him the opportunity first. At UCLA, working with the student government is much more beneficial, effective, and a broader audience than government classes on campus. If he doesn't come through, I have another avenue I can use.

hi kevin!

Just curious, are there "other" school related departments on campus (Government classes etc) that would be willing to participate and host? This seems unusual for a school that usually participates in protests. Hopefully we can make it a bit competitive by mentioning we have officers willing and able due to other school entities not being able to follow through. Just an idea. Thank you for keeping us posted.

Hi Everyone,

Thx Kevin. It would be helpful if Divya can let us know if this is something that UCLA would even like to do or be involved in. We had great success with LMU and will be involved with additional universities. We just thought UCLA would like to engage in dialogues since communication/perceptions are usually the most common problems that come up at most of our dialogues. We would need to know in advance as we have multiple Officers that would be attending. I know we have been trying to set something up for months now and are always willing to take the time with our communities. Please let us know if we should proceed and thank you so much for your involvement thus far.

Good afternoon, Divya –

I am checking in to see how the Days of Dialogue planning is progressing and to see if there is anything you need from me or my LAPD colleagues. Please let me know about the progress and what date we are projecting. If Julie or Eddy has a sample of an agenda or program from a previous Days of Dialogue, they will respond to this email with that or any other information that may be helpful in the planning. I also included Arielle in this email, so that she can help spread the word. Also, if anyone needs it, here is the link to the website that provides an overview of the program: <http://www.daysofdialogue.org/>.

I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Thank you,

Hi Everyone,

Thx Kevin. It would be helpful if Divya can let us know if this is something that UCLA would even like to do or be involved in. We had great success with LMU and will be involved with additional universities. We just thought UCLA would like to engage in dialogues since communication/perceptions are usually the most common problems that come up at most of our dialogues. We would need to know in advance as we have multiple Officers that would be attending. I know we have been trying to set something up for months now and are always willing to take the time with our communities. Please let us know if we should proceed and thank you so much for your involvement thus far.

Good afternoon, Divya –

I am checking in to see how the Days of Dialogue planning is progressing and to see if there is anything you need from me or my LAPD colleagues. Please let me know about the progress and what date we are projecting. If Julie or Eddy has a sample of an agenda or program from a previous Days of Dialogue, they will respond to this email with that or any other information that may be helpful in the planning. I also included Arielle in this email, so that she can help spread the word. Also, if anyone needs it, here is the link to the website that provides an overview of the program: <http://www.daysofdialogue.org/>.

I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Hi all,

I have cc'ed Sayron on this email -- excited to have you on board, Sayron!

Thank you for looping us in, Lt. Kilgore. I think that configuration for the event sounds great. I would opt for April 12th. Our office is hosting a Networking Night April 5th so Ackerman Grand Ballroom is already booked for the night and I would hate to double book that night and keep students from coming from this important event. Let us know when future planning meetings are. I'd love to try to attend myself or to send staff members in my place!

That's my two cents! Eager to hear yours.

Arielle's office (USAC) is hosting a Networking Night on April 5th, which would conflict with the DofD and likely result in a lower attendance for the DofD. Is there a way that your office could make April 12th work?

Good afternoon, Divya –

I am checking in to see how the Days of Dialogue planning is progressing and to see if there is anything you need from me or my LAPD colleagues. Please let me know about the progress and what date we are projecting. If Julie or Eddy has a sample of an agenda or program from a previous Days of Dialogue, they will respond to this email with that or any other information that may be helpful in the planning. I also included Arielle in this email, so that she can help spread the word. Also, if anyone needs it, here is the link to the website that provides an overview of the program: <http://www.daysofdialogue.org/>.

I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Thank you,

Julie, Eddy, and Arielle –

I met with Divya just a few minutes ago, and the dates have been narrowed down with considerations for finals week and spring break. Please let me know if Thursday, April 5 or April 12 from 6-8pm work for all of you. Once I hear back from you, we can get this on the calendar, determine which of two possible rooms (either at Kerckhoff Hall or Ackerman Union) this can be held, and an RSVP posting can be made so that we can determine the response and number of people we have for the event. The plan is to have approximately 10 round tables that hold 10 people each, which will allow for 8 students, 1 UCPD officer, and 1 LAPD officer at each table.

Arielle – would you please forward this to Sayron so she is aware and can provide input on the date?

I look forward to hearing from all of you!

Thank you,

Kevin

Hi Divya,

Thank you for joining in on the email exchange. We have worked closely with our Days of Dialogue folks for the last 5yrs setting up community round table discussions all over the City of LA (please take a look at their website and/or on one of the previous emails which Lt Kilgore shared). When it comes to private organizations/colleges, etc., we partner up and allow the student body to create the discussion format. This provides a wonderful opportunity to create an intimate space to talk with Police in a safe environment and to have full freedom over the agenda/discussion topics. We have had great success at USC and LMU. Basically, you would provide a facilitator at each round table (of about 10 students and 1-2 officers) and each table would have the same questions asked. There is a student president who usually welcomes everyone at the beginning and explains what the evening will entail. I provided a short synopsis of what an agenda may look like below. Law Enforcement from UCLA and LAPD will be partnering to help empower students/UCLA staff with additional information regarding anything from laws, traffic stops, social media, shootings etc. In turn this will help us not only bridge the gap between Police and our communities, but will help us better understand some of the frustrations out there with law enforcement and vice versa.

An agenda would look something like:

6:00-6:15 setting up officers at tables with students/welcome/opening remarks

6:15-7:15 facilitator at each table begins introductions of each person and starts questions to the group or directly to the officer

7:15-8:00 debrief/questions/remarks (highlights, what was learned/shared) from each table to the entire group

I hope this helps. Please let us know if there are additional questions and/or if you would like us to attend a pre-meeting to assist with anything. We look forward to partnering with you, hi all! I know scheduling might be a little tough with everyone. We have a City wide senior lead officer school happening April 11, 12th starting at 6am. Our office is involved and another huge event April 4th. April 5th would work out much better or the week prior or after if that works?? Any thoughts?

Julie, Eddy, and Arielle –

I met with Divya just a few minutes ago, and the dates have been narrowed down with considerations for finals week and spring break. Please let me know if Thursday, April 5 or April 12 from 6-8pm work for all of you. Once I hear back from you, we can get this on the calendar, determine which of two possible rooms (either at Kerckhoff Hall or Ackerman Union) this can be held, and an RSVP posting can be made so that we can determine the response and number of people we have for the event. The plan is to have approximately 10 round tables that hold 10 people each, which will allow for 8 students, 1 UCPD officer, and 1 LAPD officer at each table.

Arielle – would you please forward this to Sayron so she is aware and can provide input on the date?

I look forward to hearing from all of you!

Thank you,
Kevin

Hi Everyone,

Thx kevin. It would be helpful if Divya can let us know if this is something that UCLA would even like to do or be involved in. We had great success with LMU and will be involved with additional universities. We just thought UCLA would like to engage in dialogues since communication/perceptions are usually the most common problems that come up at most of our dialogues. We would need to know in advance as we have multiple Officers that would be attending. I know we have been trying to set something up for months now and are always willing to take the time with our communities. Please let us know if we should proceed and thank you so much for your involvement thus far.

Subject: Re: Days of Dialogue at UCLA

Hi Divya,

Thank you for joining in on the email exchange. We have worked closely with our Days of Dialogue folks for the last 5yrs setting up community round table discussions all over the City of LA (please take a look at their website and/or on one of the previous emails which Lt Kilgore shared). When it comes to private organizations/colleges, etc., we partner up and allow the student body to create the discussion format. This provides a wonderful opportunity to create an intimate space to talk with Police in a safe environment and to have full freedom over the agenda/discussion topics. We have had great success at USC and LMU. Basically, you would provide a facilitator at each round table (of about 10 students and 1-2 officers) and each table would have the same questions asked. There is a student president who usually welcomes everyone at the beginning and explains what the evening will entail. I provided a short synopsis of what an agenda may look like below. Law Enforcement from UCLA and LAPD will be partnering to help empower students/UCLA staff with additional information regarding anything from laws, traffic stops, social media, shootings etc. In turn this will help us not only bridge the gap between Police and our communities, but will help us better understand some of the frustrations out there with law enforcement and vice versa.

An agenda would look something like:

6:00-6:15 setting up officers at tables with students/welcome/opening remarks

6:15-7:15 facilitator at teach table begins introductions of each person and starts questions to the group or directly to the officer

7:15-8:00 debrief/questions/remarks (highlights, what was learned/shared) from each table to the entire group

I hope this helps. Please let us know if there are additional questions and/or if you would like us to attend a pre-meeting to assist with anything. We look forward to partnering with you,

I thank you all for your commitment to the students well-being.

Warmly,

Hi, Julie –

Arielle's office (USAC) is hosting a Networking Night on April 5th, which would conflict with the DofD and likely result in a lower attendance for the DofD. Is there a way that your office could make April 12th work?

Thank you,

Julie, Eddy, and Arielle –

I met with Divya just a few minutes ago, and the dates have been narrowed down with considerations for finals week and spring break. Please let me know if Thursday, April 5 or April 12 from 6-8pm work for all of you. Once I hear back from you, we can get this on the calendar, determine which of two possible rooms (either at Kerckhoff Hall or Ackerman Union) this can be held, and an RSVP posting can be made so that we can determine the response and number of people we have for the event. The plan is to have approximately 10 round tables that hold 10 people each, which will allow for 8 students, 1 UCPD officer, and 1 LAPD officer at each table.

Arielle – would you please forward this to Sayron so she is aware and can provide input on the date?

I look forward to hearing from all of you!

Thank you,

Kevin

Hi Everyone,

Thx Kevin. It would be helpful if Divya can let us know if this is something that UCLA would even like to do or be involved in. We had great success with LMU and will be involved with additional universities. We just thought UCLA would like to engage in dialogues since communication/perceptions are usually the most common problems that come up at most of our dialogues. We would need to know in advance as we have multiple Officers that would be attending. I know we have been trying to set something up for months now and are always willing to take the time with our communities. Please let us know if we should proceed and thank you so much for your involvement thus far.

Good afternoon, Divya –

I am checking in to see how the Days of Dialogue planning is progressing and to see if there is anything you need from me or my LAPD colleagues. Please let me know about the progress and what date we are projecting. If Julie or Eddy has a sample of an agenda or program from a previous Days of Dialogue, they will respond to this email with that or any other information that may be helpful in the planning. I also included Arielle in this email, so that she can help spread the word. Also, if anyone needs it, here is the link to the website that provides an overview of the program: <http://www.daysofdialogue.org/>.

I look forward to hearing from you soon.
